DevOps - Week 2

Brainstorm about 3 things we can do by using wayscript in software production.

1. We can use WayScript with GitHub and Slack. It would be useful to automate Slack messages alerting the proper channel that new changes have been made to the project repo. For example, every time a branch is merged into another, an automated Slack alert would inform the project members to pull the new changes.

2. We can also automate Slack messages for updates on the Trello board. This would be useful in informing the team of everyone's current progress.

3. We can also automate Slack message with test/build results. This would let the team know if a build failed so the team can quickly give it the attention it requires.
